

ABORIGINAL PAINTING

Aboriginal art usually has religious significance and is used for purposes. It often relates to the Dreamtime.

The Dreamtime refers to the and stories about the creation of the and all living things.

Paintings are on or canvas.
X-ray paintings show the and external features of the animal. lines are used to create patterns.

Hatching

Outlines and details of the animals are painted using strands of a palm leaf, or fine brushes

The traditional are black, brown, white and but many modern Aboriginal painters use colours, acrylic paints, which can be any colour imaginable. herringbone

Put these words in the correct place - rock, non-traditional, ceremonial, geometric, ochre, feathers, internal, colours, myths, bark, earth, cross-hatching

Practise some of the lines and patterns below

